Exercise 1

The following figure shows four maps with several environmental and health indicators. We can see that industrial countries are tend to be in a better shape according to those indicators, while developing countries seem to have more problems.¹

¹Units of variables:

*Health Impacts - In probability of child mortality

Air Quality - Average percentage of pollution indicators, such as solid fuels consumption per capita and exposure to pollution

 Water and Sanitation - Average percentage of population has access to improved sanitation and drinking water source

* Environmental Health - Average of the other indicators
